What Is Happening In Haiti Will Come Here Too

8–10 minutes

The kind of rampant civil unrest that has thrown Haiti into turmoil will happen in the United States and other wealthy western nations too. At this point, it is just a matter of time. Here in the United States, we have been adding millions upon millions of extremely desperate people on top of the millions upon millions of extremely desperate people that we already had. Politicians in major cities such as New York and Chicago openly admit that they can't possibly take any more migrants because the social services available for them have been completely overwhelmed, but more migrants just keep coming anyway. We are creating an extremely explosive environment, and the pressure that is coming in 2024 and beyond could push things over the edge.

If you want an idea of what is coming, just look at what is happening in Haiti right now. Following years of disastrous policies, the entire nation has descended into a state of chaos...

The Republic of Haiti has been sliding toward failed state status for much of the 21st Century, but over the past few weeks, the collapse escalated at a blistering pace. Following the assassination of president Jovenel Moïse in 2021, the prime minister and acting president Ariel Henry has failed to control the gang violence wreaking havoc on the capital, Port-au-Prince. With gangs now controlling as much as 80 percent of the city, Henry traveled to Guyana in February to sign a treaty allowing a contingent of 1,000 Kenyan police officers to patrol Port-au-Prince. But after the gangs shut down the airport and released thousands from prison, Henry was forced to announce his resignation from exile — and delay the police force deployment that could help bring order to the capital.

It would be hard to overstate how nightmarish conditions have become in Haiti.

One British news source is comparing the current state of affairs to “the post-apocalyptic world of Mad Max”...

Haiti has been compared to the post-apocalyptic world of Mad Max as gang chaos continues.

Gang leaders are still fighting despite absentee Prime Minister Ariel Henry agreeing to resign last week.

With Haitians awaiting the formation of a Transitional Governing

Council that is set to take power before elections are held, gangs looted aid supplies over the weekend.

UNICEF said containers with “essential items for maternal, neonatal, and child survival, including resuscitators and related equipment” were snared by gangs in the capital Port-au-Prince on Saturday.

Apparently the Biden administration decided that it would be a good idea to open the floodgates for those that wish to leave Haiti and come here.

According to the Washington Examiner, so far the Department of Homeland Security has helped to relocate more than 130,000 migrants from Haiti in dozens of U.S. cities...

The Department of Homeland Security has guided over 130,000 illegal immigrants from gang-ravaged Haiti into dozens of unidentified American cities, but it won't say where.

Many of the 133,000 arrived in just one city that the Biden administration won't identify, according to a federal report reviewed by the Center for Immigration Studies.

The Washington-based CIS, which backs ending illegal immigration, said that many immigrants flew themselves to the unidentified cities, while others arrived through land ports only to be released to wherever they wanted to go.

Of course a lot more are heading our way.

According to Florida Governor Ron DeSantis, a boat carrying a group of Haitian migrants that had guns, drugs and night vision gear was recently intercepted off the coast of his state...

“Our Florida Fish and Wildlife offices interdicted a vessel that had 25 illegal immigrants, potential illegal immigrants from Haiti in their boat. In their vessel, they had firearms, they had drugs, they had night vision gear, and were boating very recklessly, which would potentially endanger other folks,” DeSantis said at a press conference where he signed three pieces of legislation to deter illegal immigration.

“That vessel was interdicted near the Sebastian Inlet and those illegal aliens were turned over to the Coast Guard for deportation,” the governor said.

Needless to say, it isn’t just extremely desperate people from Haiti that are attempting to come to the United States in very large numbers.

Right now, our borders are under siege from “asylum seekers” that are coming to us from all over the globe.

Migrants have been taught that if they just say the right things about “seeking asylum” they will be let into the country.

And this isn’t just happening at the southern border.

Over the past couple of years, the number of migrants crossing over from Canada has been increasing at an exponential rate...

In fiscal year 2023, border officials encountered 189,401 illegal and inadmissible immigrants along the U.S.–Canada border, including at the ports of entry. Of those, 10,021 were caught crossing illegally between ports of entry.

In fiscal 2021, that number was 916.

Far more have been coming over the southern border.

Overall, we are witnessing a tsunami of migration that is far greater than anything that we have ever witnessed before. The following comes from U.S. Senator John Cornyn...

(Under President Biden's leadership, we've seen an unprecedented crisis at our southern border, and an administration that proves time and time again that they simply don't care.

Since President Biden took office, U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) has logged more than 5.4 million illegal border crossings, plus at least 1.5 million "gotaways" – that is, border crossers who were detected by CBP technology, but who were never apprehended.

Once "asylum seekers" are released into this country, they could literally go anywhere.

One migrant from Lebanon that was encountered at the border actually admitted that he was a member of Hezbollah and that he was planning to go to New York City and make a bomb...

(A Lebanese migrant who was caught sneaking over the border admitted he's a member of Hezbollah, he hoped to make a bomb, and his destination was New York, The Post can reveal.

Basel Bassel Ebbadi, 22, was caught by the US Border Patrol on March 9 near El Paso, Texas. While in custody, he was asked what he was doing in the US, to which he replied, "I'm going to try to make a bomb," according to a Border Patrol document exclusively obtained by The Post.

We were quite fortunate to have caught that guy before he did any damage.

But how many others have successfully entered this country through our wide open borders?

Our politicians go on and on about “threats to national security”, but it is all empty talk unless they are willing to secure our borders.

Because without secure borders, our nation will never be secure.

Unfortunately, more desperate people continue to pour over our borders with each passing day, and it won't be too long before we reach a tipping point.
