My view is that

Now we learn what many already experienced. Namely that the unvaccinated are receiving terrible treatment, including loss of fundamental rights.

Consider this: Many vaccinated people do not want close relatives to marry an unvaccinated person. They are also inclined to think that the unvaccinated are incompetent as well

Here are excerpts of the new study titled

*“Discriminatory

Unvaccinated During a Global Pandemic.”

Abstract

During the COVID-19 pandemic sizeable groups of unvaccinated minorities persist even in countries with high vaccine access.

Consequently,
vaccination became a
controversial subject
of debate and even protest. Here, we assess whether
people express
discriminatory
attitudes in the form of negative affect,

stereotypes and
exclusionary attitudes
in family and political settings across
groups defined by
COVID-19 vaccination
status.

We quantify
discriminatory
attitudes between

vaccinated and
unvaccinated citizens
in 21 countries,
covering a diverse set
of cultures across the world. Across three conjoint experimental studies (N=15,233),
we demonstrate that
vaccinated people

express discriminatory attitudes towards the unvaccinated, as high as the discriminatory attitudes suffered by common targets like immigrant and minority populations.

In contrast, there is an absence of evidence that unvaccinated individuals display discriminatory attitudes towards vaccinated people, except for the presence of negative affect in Germany and United States. We find evidence in support of

unvaccinated in all countries except Hungary and Romania and find that
attitudes are more strongly expressed in
cultures with stronger

cooperative norms.

Prior research on the psychology of cooperation has shown that individuals react negatively against perceived free-riders, including in the domain of vaccinations.

Consistent with this,
the present findings
suggest that
contributors to the public good of
epidemic control (i.e.,
the vaccinated) react
with discriminatory
attitudes against
perceived free-riders

(i.e., the unvaccinated).

Elites and the
vaccinated general
public appealed to
moral obligations to increase COVID-19
vaccine uptake but
the present findings

attitudes including
support for the removal of
fundamental rights
simultaneously
emerged.
